Featured Saint of the Week

St. Andrew Corsini (1302-1374)

Feast Day: January 6

Early in his life Andrew had no direction, but showed tremendous interest in wine, women, and song. That was, until his mother rebuked her son for his behaviors. She'd prayed about it, but then quite forcefully "encouraged" him to visit the local church to spend time talking with God. Her words were not wasted. He eventually came to the decision and resolved to join the Carmelites to become a priest or friar. This was despite the urging of his friends to return to his former life.

Andrew began his new life within the Carmelite monastery in 1318. His ordination and first Mass took place in 1328; then he chose to live a more reclusive religious life as a friar. He developed a reputation earning the nickname of the "Apostle of Florence." He was later chosen as prior of the monastery.

In 1349, Pope Clement VI appointed Andrew as the new Bishop of Fiesole. Not wanting the position, Andrew's response was to go into hiding. Ultimately, he accepted his new role as Bishop.

Andrew was born into a life of nobility, plus he had a heart for the challenges of the poor. Pope Urban felt Andrew's experiences would make him a valuable asset as a peacemaker between political factions of the people. So he sent Andrew to Bologna as a papal legate to heal some breaches between the nobles and the poor. Once this matter settled, Andrew returned to his work as Bishop; remaining Bishop of Fiesole from 1349 until his death at 71.

It is reported that as Andrew celebrated Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve, the Blessed Virgin appeared to him and told him that he would leave this world on the Three Kings' feast. It came to pass that he fell ill on Christmas night and died as foretold on 1/6/1374.

His remains were exhumed in 1385 for relocating to Florence, Italy and found to be incorrupt. There were a number of miracles credited to him including healings and some war victories. Pope Clement XII canonized St. Andrew on April 22, 1699.
